

Obturation: Between Myth and Reality

Obturation of root canal system is a daily routine for every dental practitioner. Recently, there are many concepts and techniques for canal obturation which could be tricky to be performed especially because there are some transferable experiences between the practitioners that can be untrue. The lecture will engage with the recent trend of root canal obturation and clarify the misleading concepts that may results in improper treatment outcomes